~~The subcommittee has not met since~~ will it until after Labor Day by agreement. Any action of the subcommittee would not be definitive for 6 months to a year. The Army interprets ↑ why? finished initially. To include layouts, summaries, etc. — a much broader scope than we have ever thought necessary.

The Army may so interpret it now — but if they want a joint indexing scheme they should be prepared to bend some.

Remarks:

~~Reply~~ Decision on this study should take into account the Army proposal for joint indexing of finished intelligence which the CODIB Subcommittee on Classification has in review. It would seem desirable to table implementation of this proposal until we get some kind of reading from the Subcommittee. In any event, we are obligated to inform CODIB of our change in plans — if in fact we plan to change.
